Nivedita Ghosh Roy

"Despite their versatility, roofing solutions are mostly overlooked in discussions about sustainability. In efforts to bridge this gap, I aim to incorporate these advanced roofing technologies and creative new innovative solutions when I start my sustainable architecture firm. I not only plan to emphasize these roofing solutions because of their environmental benefits, but as a way to engage grade school students in sustainability education as well."

The runner-up of the 2024 Castagra Roofing Scholarship Program is Jade Alberti, who is a rising freshman at California Polytechnic State University, pursuing a double major in construction management and environmental engineering.

Jade Alberti

"Admittedly, none of these roofing solutions are perfect, yet. It would be a dream to do a hands-on research and experimentation with these ideas in the next 4 years and hopefully beyond, and develop ways in which these solutions could be implemented easier and become fully realized. Unsustainable construction ends with us. It ends with my generation of industry professionals that recognizes the crucialness of change."

Congratulations Nivedita and Jade!
